Passionate About People

Branching Out - Horticulture Services

Buying our gardening services

www.ambient.org.uk

Who are we?

Ambient's horticulture project, Branching Out, is currently based in and around the London Borough of Bromley.

It trains people that have lived experience of mental health in gardening and horticulture techniques, allowing them to engage with nature, learn new skills and complete work-based gardening projects, in the surrounding areas.

Working outdoors in a team supports participants mental health recovery, builds confidence and self-esteem and enables them to lead valued and fulfilling lives in the community.

Ambient is now seeking new gardening and horticulture contracts in Bromley and the surrounding areas.

What do we do?

- Fulfil gardening maintenance services and small gardening projects.
- Train people that have mental health problems in horticulture and gardening techniques.
- Supports people with mental health problems to return to training, education, volunteering and work.
- Encourage people to improve their physical and mental health using gardening activities.
- Income received from delivering contracted gardening services is reinvested back into the project, so we may support even more people to participate.
- Educate people about the discrimination and stigma that can often be associated with mental health problems.

Benefits of buying our services

Ambient's horticulture project can deliver:

- Quality-assured work.
- Competitive contract rates vs other professional gardening services
- A gardening team to work on all contracts, overseen by a trained gardener.
- All Ambient gardening teams are equipped to meet relevant Health & Safety standards and requirements.
- Contracting us may meet your organization's corporate, social responsibility policies and guidelines.
